LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY

Water, Fire and Wind Bring Death and Disaster to Many Western and Southern Cities.

HEAVY RAINS OVER THE COUNTRY

As a result of the flooded rivers of Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri and Iowa thousands of people are homeless and millions of dollars worth of property has been destroyed. The total area covered by the floods runs to hundreds of square miles, extending from Kansas City, Mo. to Des Moines, Iowa. Topeka, Kansas and Kansas City are the greatest sufferers, while the loss of life and property in many other towns is appalling.

Gainsville, Ga., was visited by a tornado Monday afternoon, and many lives were lost.

The estimated loss of life in Kansas City as a result of the flood is in the neighborhood of fifty. In Kansas City, Kas., the homeless number 20,000. Conditions in the two cities are grave and have remained practically unchanged for twenty four hours. The greatest danger in Kansas City, Mo., is from fire, at the mercy of which the city would be placed because the water plant is closed down. The gas and electric plants are also disabled. The wholesale district of the city is submerged.

At Topeka, Kan., Des Moines and most of the other flood-visited points the situation shows improvement, with water receding and the worst believed to be over. First reports of fatalities in North Topeka were enormously exaggerated, and the number of dead there is now placed at from 20 to 25. The gravest aspect of the case lies in the possibility of a spread of contagious disease among the refugees and others. No estimate in dollars has been placed on the flood loss in the various cities, the farm lands and the connecting railroads.

A tornado visited the towns of Gainsville, New Holland and White Sulphur, Georgia, Monday afternoon resulting in the killing of about 85 men, women and children, according to incomplete reports. It is estimated that forty persons were fatally injured. Two hundred houses, besides the large Gainsville Cotton Mills, were destroyed by the storm aggregating a property loss of $300,000.

In the neighborhood of 200 lives lost, as many more missing, thousands of persons homeless and property loss that will aggregate vague millions, is the latest report from the flood-ridden districts of the Kaw, the Mississippi and the Missouri rivers. The worst is believed to be over at North Topeka, Kan., where the dead and missing lists will chiefly be made up. Estimates of the number of dead there vary from 170 to 200, and the missing number 200. Eight thousand persons are homeless and the property loss is placed at $4,000,000. Kansas City was yesterday made the particular victim of the flood fiend and twenty-six lives are reported lost in the city and vicinity. The packing industries in Armordale are paralyzed, and the suburb of sixteen thousand population is deserted. Two thirds of another suburb, Argentine, is under water while blocks of the business district of the city proper are flooded. By the submerging of tracks here and there where the railroads

Carnegie May Be Interested.

A dispatch from Paducah says: George W. Pepper and Niven McConnell, of Pittsburg, connected with the Carnegie Steel company were in the city a short time Friday afternoon and night.

They arrived here at 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon on the I. C. train from Illinois and left at 1:30 o'clock this morning for Pittsburg. It could not be learned today where they had been but it was reported they had visited the ore fields in Hardin and Pope counties, Ill., which are above Paducah. Some very fine lead and zinc ore has been found in that section, such as is also found just across the river in Crittenden and Livingston counties, Ky.

It may be that the Carnegie Steel company is making a quiet investigation with a view to establishing some kind of a manufacturing plant in this section.

WALLACE C. FRANKLIN

Honored at Washington—He Debates in a Noted Oratorical Contest.

We are in receipt of the announcements and commencement programs of the Columbia University of Washington, D. C. Mr. Wallace C. Franklin, of this country, receives the degree of LL. B. in the department of jurisprudence and diplomacy. Mr. Franklin was selected as one of the debaters in the annual oratorical contest between three representatives of the Columbian University and three representatives of the Georgetown University. The speakers are selected with great care. Mr. Franklin is a splendid speaker, a true Kentucky orator, and he will make it warm for his opponents. In speaking of the contest the Washington Times says of Mr. Franklin:

He entered Columbian University in the fall of 1900, and in 1902 received the bachelor's degree in law. This year he will receive the degree of master of laws. He has always been prominent in debating work, and especially in the affairs of the university society, where he has served creditably on the executive committee. He took part in the prize debate of last year; he has also been an active participant in the work of the Junior Congress of the United States, a society under the direction of Dr. Channing Rudd, containing members from the various universities and law schools of this city.

Mr. Franklin and the other two Columbian debaters were selected in a series of three contests, by the following judges: Judge Brower of the Supreme Court; Judge Peeler of the Court of Claims; Judge Van Devanter, Assistant Attorney General; Judge Hannis Taylor, ex-Minister to Spain; President Needham and Prof. Kirby, of the university.

BRADLEY WILL NOT RUN.
Former Governor W. O. Bradley has issued a statement denying a report that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. Governor Bradley says he will not allow his name to be used, and that he is out of politics for good. He will devote his entire time to the practice of law.

In his statement Governor Bradley endorses the candidacy of Hon. E. E. Willson, of Louisville, saying he is the strongest of the three candidates now in the race. He further states that Mr. Willson has no hopes of being appointed to the United States Supreme bench when Judge Harlan resigns.

County Attorneys to Meet.

The State meeting of the County Attorneys Association will be held at Dawson on July 8, 9 and 10. The most important subject to be discussed at the meeting is "Needed legislation for county boards of health, making them subservient to the county authorities instead of the latter's masters." All county judges will be invited.

BACK TO PADUCAH.
It is stated that the Illinois Central dispatchers of the Central division of the Illinois Central will be moved from Princeton back to Paducah, bringing with them the headquarters of Trainmaster T. A. Banks. The offices were moved from Paducah about two years ago.

CRITTENDEN SPRINGS OPENS SOON.

Mr. C. M. Kennedy, of Owingsville, who has rented the Crittenden Springs Hotel, has been in the city several days arranging for the opening of the big hotel. The hotel will be ready for guests next week. Opening ball will be given about June 20th. Mr. Kennedy is a pleasant young gentleman and seems to be thoroughly familiar with the business.

At a meeting in Frankfort Saturday, the Democratic State Executive committee, with eight of its thirteen members voting, adopted a resolution indorsing the action of State Chairman Young in attempting to call off the Jefferson county primary election. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 5 to 3, Committeemen Lassing, Lee and Jones protesting against the action. The committee refused to hear argument from a delegation of Louisville Democrats, who attended the meeting and asked the privilege of stating their cause.

JUNE WEATHER.

The Predictions Made By Hicks For the Coming Month.

RAIN, WINDS AND STORMS.

The predictions of Hicks for the month of June follow:

The first storm period in June is central on the 4th, covering the 2nd to the 6th. There are good reasons to expect the crisis of this period on and touching the 3rd. On that date the planet Mercury is between Earth and Sun, the Moon is near first quarter and on the celestial equator, and Venus is really at the center of her equinox, although the storm diagram would indicate that the center of the Venus period falls on the 12th. High degrees of humidity, high temperature and very low barometer, on and next to Wednesday the 3rd, will prove certain harbingers of severe storms. If these conditions develop about the 3rd, and actual storms are delayed even up to the 5th or 6th, do not be thrown off your guard until the indications culminate. Violent thunder storms, accompanied with hail and possibly tornadic centers, are among the things reasonably to be expected at this period. Venus downpours of rain, amounting to cloudburst in many localities, are also more than probable. You can depend upon it, the storms of this period will not be entirely over until the barometer makes a decided rise, and the winds change and blow strong and much cooler from the west and north. Some very cool nights are sure to result when the storms are over. Remember that the marked characteristics of the Venus periods are, exceeding high temperatures during the first stages of regular storm periods, excessive electrical phenomena, and followed by sudden change to phenomenally cool.

On and touching the 9th and 10, look for reaction to storm conditions—change to much warmer, falling barometer and more storms of rain, thunder and heavy squalls of wind.

The regular storm period covering the 14th to the 19th, will reach its culminating stages about Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the 17th, 18th and 19th. The storm diagram shows that the summer solstice is in full force at this time. Many electrical storms will be most natural, with some energetic and dangerous wind storms. Watch the clouds, your barometer and other indications—have a safe refuge available in case of manifest danger, and all will be well. Put away foolish forebodings, and go about your business. Make careful plans to avoid the June showers, especially in your hay-making at this time. On and touching the 21st and 22nd, look for the return of storm conditions, with renewed thunder and rain squalls, and much harmless lightning at night. Most sections will have sufficient rains at this and other June periods. Central regions may have too much, while extreme north and north sections may suffer some shortage. The last week in June is covered by a combined Mercury and Vulcan storm period. About the 25th it will turn exceedingly warm, the barometer will fall and persistent cloudiness and frequent storms of wide extent and much energy will mark the closing days of the month.

A BIG HATCH.

Dr. J. F. Spratt, of Canavaro, recently set eight goose eggs. In due time there were seven goslings and two eggs unhatched. He broke the eggs, and one contained two well developed goslings. This makes a count of one bad egg, two unhatched goslings and seven living goslings from eight eggs. and the doctor is positive that no eggs were added to those first set.—Mr. Sterling Sentinel-Democrat.

A BIG TREE

Raised in Kentucky Sold For $1,600.

The largest walnut log ever taken out of Eastern Kentucky mountain forests has just been taken from Cross Fork of Kentucky river, overland across the mountains to Jackson, Breathitt county, to the Cincinnati markets, says a Mayking special to the Commercial Tribune. The log was nearly six feet in diameter and sixteen feet long, and it required eight large yoke of oxen to "snake" it over the mountains.

There are two more cuts of sixteen foot lengths to haul to Jessup for shipment, and the smaller of these cuts is two and one-half feet in diameter. The quality of the tree is of the finest curl walnut, and will bring thousands of dollars in the market. Uncle Joe Hale, the owner of the tree, sold it for $1,600 and was pleased with his bargain.

Members of the Kentucky World's Fair Association gave Mr. Hale a bid on the tree with the intention of placing it on exhibition at St. Louis in 1904, but their bid of $2000 was a day too late. On the Hale farm there is still standing a poplar tree seven feet in diameter, which is over 150 feet high. Several other immense poplars are still standing, most all of the smaller ones having been taken out and floated down the river.

THE WOMEN OF THE SOUTH.

The following beautiful tribute to the women of the South is taken from John Esten Cook's famous work, "Mohum; or, the Last Days of Lee and his Paladins."

"Meanwhile three classes of persons remained faithful to the death—the old men, the army and the women.

"The gray beards were taking down their old guns and swords, and forming home battalions, to fight the enemy to the death when his cavalry came to lay waste the country.

"The women were weaving home spun, knitting socks, nursing the wounded, praying. They had no reason to pray, nor had they lost the heart of hope. The croakers believed in success, and their patron saint was Mammon. The women believed in the justice of the cause, and in God. In 1861, they had cheered the soldiers, and waved their handkerchiefs, and rained bouquets. In 1862, they had sent brave words of encouragement and bade their sons, and brothers, and husbands, fight to the end. In 1863, they repeated that—sent the laggards back to the ranks—and when they were not sewing or nursing the sick, were praying. Of women of Virginia and the great South to her farthest limits, there is nothing in all history that surpasses your grand record. You hoped in the dark days as in the bright—when bearded men shrank, you fronted the storm unmoved.

"Always you hoped, and endured, and prayed for the land. Had the rest done their duty like the women and the army, the red-cross flag would be floating today in triumph."

AN AWFUL DOOM.

A special from New Castle, Wyoming says the W. C. Clifton, the murderer of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Purcha, was lynched by a mob from Gillett. They battered down the jail door after holding up the sheriff, and hung Clifton to a bridge west of town. Clifton's head was cut entirely off by the fall of forty feet, and his headless body dropped into the creek below.

PRINTING MONEY

Presses at Engraving Bureau Run Day and Night.

(Washington Telegram to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.)

The presses at the Bureau of Engraving and printing are moving twenty-four hours a day printing money. The run is on new national bank notes.

It takes about twenty-five days to prepare new money for the banks so that it will be properly "seasoned" to go into the hands of the public.

The banks have orders ahead for many millions, and the circulation is being delivered to the Controller by wagon loads each day. From the Controller's office it is shipped to the banks upon the deposit of bonds covering the amount to be shipped. The circulation of national banks of the United States has passed the $100,000,000 mark, the largest amount in their history.

The banks are still putting more money in circulation to prevent any scarcity on the money supply this summer or early in the fall.

December 31 last, the circulation of the banks stood at $384,929,784 and this was considered about the highest figure that would be reached before next fall.

The Cigarette and the Manlette.

A cigarette is the diminutive form of a cigar, just as the fellow who habitually smokes them is a manlette, the diminutive form of a man.

The termination of ette usually means that something has been drained off, rinsed or left out of an article, leaving a vapid counterfeit, like skimmed milk or unsalted soap.

Sometimes ette means a compound of all sorts of mixed odds and ends, just as dishwater suggests the dinner, but is of itself neither bread, flesh, fruit, sugar, nor water.

The Military Academy at West Point recently expelled a cadet for using cigarettes and trying to lie out of it when detected. We are still horrified for West Point.

Of course he lied about it; falsehood and the cigarette are the Siamese twins of the moral world—the Chang and Eng of habit. The opium soon destroys the smoker's sense of moral responsibility, till he can no more forsake lying when tempted than he can forsake the cigarette.

We do not deny that the habitual cigarette smoker can tell the truth for a brief time—till the fiend gets its clutches upon him and kicks the truth out of the door.

Even after the surrender to King Nicotine the smoker can still tell the truth—when more convenient than lying.

"Many a good man smokes cigarettes—has the cigarette habit." Yes, "good" so long as he has the habit; but when the habit has him, then farewell to will, moral sense, personality, manhood.

A FIGHT AGAINST LOAFING.

Owingsville, Ky., May 28.—The City Council has passed a stringent ordinance against loafing on the streets here, and the chief of police has been ordered to enforce the law. Two negroes are now working out fines for violating the new law. Before the ordinance was passed it was difficult to pass some points in town, owing to the crowds of loafers.

BOB TAYLOR ON INGERSOLL.

The following flight of eloquence from ex-Gov. Robt. L. Taylor, of Tennessee, is worthy of wide circulation.

"I sat in a great theatre in the National Capitol. It was thronged—youth and beauty, old age and wisdom. I saw a man, the image of God, upon the stage, and I heard him speak. His gestures were the perfection of grace; his voice was music and his language was more beautiful than any I had ever heard fall from mortal lips. He painted picture after picture of pleasure and joy and sympathies of home. He enthroned and presented the gospel of humanity like an angel. Then I saw him dip his brush in the ink of mortal blackness and blot out the beautiful picture he had painted. I saw him stab love dead at his feet. I saw him blot out the stars and sun and leave humanity and the earth in eternal darkness and death. I saw him like a serpent of old, worm himself into the paradise of human hearts, and by his seductive eloquence and subtle device of sophistry inject his fatal venom, under whose blight its flowers faded, its music was hushed, its sunshine was darkened, and the soul was left a desset waste of new made graves of faith and hope.

December 31 last, the circulation of the banks stood at $384,929,784 and this was considered about the highest figure that would be reached before next fall.

IN LIVINGSTON COUNTY.

Thirty Mormon Elders Hold a Conference.

Thirty Mormon Elders from Utah held conference with all day meeting and dinner on the ground two miles east of Joy, Livingston county, last week. The Utah delegates were met by Elders Greer and Stokes at Berry's Ferry, and conducted to Eminence, where Mormon doctrines were ably declared. After the close of the conference they all took their departure for new fields of labor, except local Elders Greer and Stokes, who will continue their labors in this country.—Livingston Banner.

SUPPORT THE LOCAL PAPER.

Speaking of what a newspaper does for a community, United States Senator David Davis, of Illinois, made the address that remains ever green in the memory of newspaper men, says the Marenco, Ia., Democrat. He said:

"Every year every local paper gives from 500 to 5,000 free lines for the benefit of the community in which it is printed. No other agency can or will do this. The editor in proportion to his means does more for his town than any any other man, and in all fairness, man with man, he ought to be supported—not because you happen to like the man or admire his writings, but because a local paper is the best investment a community can make. It may not be crowded with great thought, but financially it is of more benefit than both preacher and teacher. Today editors do more for less pay than any men on earth. Patronize your home paper, not as a charity, but as an investment."

A SLICK GAME.

A novel game that seems to be making a lot of money for the promoters is being worked all over the country. A pamphlet copy of the story of a recent tragedy in Buffalo is being sent to traveling men at 60 cents o. o. d. The plan is to send the book to traveling men's addresses where they live, knowing that 90 per cent. of them are away from home. Their families, thinking that absent drummers had ordered the book, readily pay the 60 cents o. o. d., and are mulcted of that amount of money.

MISSING LIMBS

Often Ache and Pain Years After They Are Lost.

"It is an old subject, I suppose, this thing of a man having aches and pains in a wooden leg or a missing arm," said an old soldier who was talking to a group of comrades, "but I have been surprised to know that there are a great many persons in the world who are inclined to disbelieve the stories that are told in this connection. You see, I have but one arm. One of my arms was swept away by a shell at the Second Manassas. But I am a living witness to the fact that there is much feeling left in the arm which I left behind me. Here a few days ago I was compelled to go to a doctor for something to relieve the pain in a hand which I lost 40 years ago. That will, no doubt, sound curious to persons who know nothing about matters of this kind, but it is a fact, and is, of course, explainable on scientific grounds. It is a nervous sympathy. I suppose at the moment that my arm was swept from my side in battle something pricked and pained my hand, and that the impression was communicated to my brain before the quick and fearful work of the shell had been finished. This is my theory of the matter. Since that time the impression has recurred, the recurrence, no doubt, being traced to some feeling or some condition, mental or physical, in some way associated with the event of 40 years ago. The theory seems to me to be reasonable, and it is about the best explanation of the phenomenon I can offer. Whatever the explanation may be, I can testify to the fact, for I have been taking medicine for the last 40 years at different times for an aching, suffering hand which I did not possess."—New Orleans Times Democrat.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

Simply speaking, the payment of an old age pension, say of a hundred dollars each to every citizen, male or female, who has passed the age of seventy, does not involve a heavy burden to the State. Let us now consider for a moment the advantages which the State, as an organization, would receive from such a system. As matters stand, the managers of asylums, whether for the poor, or perhaps for the blind, or the insane, or other invalids, are always at their wits' ends to know what they shall do with the aged people who are crowded upon them. The almshouses of towns and counties are filled in the same way.

Now, all these old people are better cared for in the homes of old neighbors, or old friends, very possibly of sons, or of daughters, who would receive them and take care of them humanely if they could receive a little ready money for the extra expense. As society organizes itself, a very little money goes a great way in the average household of an American. The moment it appears that a grandfather or a grandmother has one hundred dollars a year to his good that moment we shall find that the burden thrown upon the State and town in their asylums is reduced by a larger proportion than by the charge made by the pensions upon the treasury. Thus the pension system has the great advantage that it maintains life in homes, and that it abates the necessity for great institutions or asylums.—Edward Everett Hale, in June Cosmopolitan.

OWE NO MAN.

Debt is a troublesome factor in human life. It is easier to get into it than it is to get out of it. Wisdom says avoid it; run not into it hastily or suddenly; or, if it has been incurred pay it off as soon as possible, and keep out of it. Every man thinks he is the best judge of his circumstances, and does not take kindly to advice from outsiders, but the wisest of us would do well to heed the voice of experience. Thousands have suffered because they thought themselves wiser than others. Ruined reputations and business follow heedlessly about going into debt. Numbers contract the habit of borrowing, and with the multiplication of their wants larger and larger sums are obtained until complete disaster overtakes them; or if some of them manage to keep things afloat during their lifetime by various expedients, they leave bankrupt estates behind them and financial ruin to their dependents. Debt is one of the crying evils of the day. Churches and homes suffer from it, as well as society and business. There is need to emphasize anew Paul's practical principle: "Owe no man anything, but love one another."—The Presbyterian.

A MAY PARTY.

Tuesday, May 25th, being a bright summer day, a party composed of seven persons, including the chaperone, shouldering their fishing rods with merry hearts trudged to the creek and engaged in the pastime of fishing.

After spending two hours in this merry sport, we started home early by the pleasant home of Mr. E. E. Thurman, where we found some fruit; on we came to a home on North Main street, where refreshments were served.

We entered town amid enthusiastic shouts and pawpaw whistles.

We voted the occasion one of the merriest of our lives and decided that this party of seven will, on some bright day in the future, return to haunts of Crooked creek.

One Who Was There.

LIGHTNING PRANKS.

During a thunderstorm Virgil Lieman, a colored boy, living near Providence took shelter under a tree on the banks of Weir's creek, where he was fishing. The tree was struck by lightning, seriously injuring the boy. A six-shooter in the boy's pocket was discharged by the bolt, every cartridge exploding. The boy was seriously shocked and burned, but will survive.

During the storm lightning struck the large stock barn of Jerry McGill, of the Clay country, setting fire to it and destroying it with all it contained. The loss will probably reach $1,500 or more.

Napoleon's Portrait on Stamps.

It is quite probable that the portrait of the once mighty Frenchman, Napoleon Bonaparte, will adorn the postal gallery of the United States.

The occasion for this possible departure from established custom lies in the prospective issue of stamps by the post office department to commemorate the purchase of the Louisiana Territory from France in 1803. The decision to issue a special series of stamps has not been finally decided upon, but from the highest authority it is learned that there is practically no doubt of an affirmative decision.

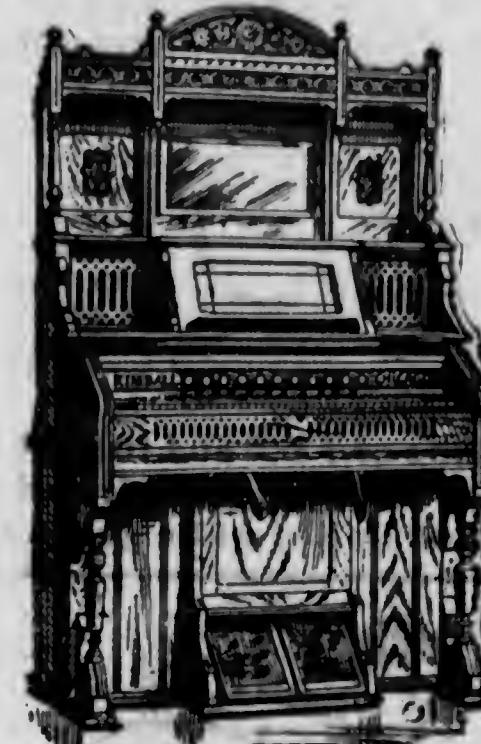

Another Gold Brick Victim.

Smith's Grove, Ky., May 30.—Henry Cowles, one of the wealthiest farmers in this section was worked by the "gold brick" trick to the extent of $4,500. Mr. Cowles has learned that his gold brick is brass.

The buccos are the same men who are now under arrest in Indiana, and who buccooed Farmer Johnson, of Todd county, out of $5,000.

Mr. Cowles has just returned from Indiana, where he identified the swindlers.

We can show you almost 50 different patterns in the celebrated Primrose Batiste alone, and when you are getting the Sweetest Patterns of the season, you buy a Primrose you are assured that the price is only 20 cents, the quality is better and the styles much prettier than can be found in any other 25 or 30 cent goods.

All of Breathitt county ought to be made prisoners of war.

You must spell Committee with a big "C" in Kentucky this year.

Judge Towery and Tom Rankin have built a culvert over the chasm between them.

Cyclones and floods seem to be doing their worst in Kansas. May be Carrie Nation is the Jonah.

Good roads are the only needful things to make Crittenden county an oasis, a bonanza and an eldorado.

Progress is being made in Breathitt county, but the peace protocol has not been signed by a large majority yet.

With this fine tobacco season, it is possible that we will get out as large acreage of the weed as we have mileage of mineral lands.

The stock law might not be a good thing for the county, but for town purposes it's a good, all around law. We are for a city council that's for a city stock law.

Our mining reporter was sent out to make a tour of the district, and his inability to make the rounds in a week shows that the district is expanding, or else he has "struck it rich."

Judge Robbins, of Mayfield, has been appointed by the governor to try the Caleb Powers case. Judge Robbins is one of the best men in public life in the State, and he is a learned and mature Judge.

The State Commercial Convention is in session in Louisville. The attendance is large and the interest manifest in this gathering is beginning to assume proportions commensurate with the great importance of the business of the organization. Industrial development and improvement of commercial conditions are tangible, not theoretical objects, and active, not passive, unions are necessary to attain them.

A change of venue has been granted Jett and White, accused of the Marcus murder, to Morgan county under Judge Kenner, and their trial was set for June 23d.

Kentucky Democrats of late years are never so happy as when doing the family row stout. Sacrifice or concession for the sake of harmony is not part of our philosophy, it seems.

Six hundred thousand dollars of the Philippine coinage is on its way to the islands. Plenty of this tonic will doubtless alleviate many of the ills the human flesh is heir to, even in our faraway possessions.

The St. Louis April grand jury submitted a final report in which it said that legislative corruption and bribery have been the rule for the past twelve years. The confessions of State Senators are described as appalling. An extension of the statute of limitations from three to seven years is recommended.

A new post office building is the great crying need in Marion. The business has increased from fifty to one hundred per cent. in the past ten years, and the building that just fit the business ten years ago is one decade behind. As Uncle Sam did not give us the $50,000 building, he should see to it that the accommodations in this respect are up to immediate, pressing demands.

McKnight Must Go to Prison.

The United States Court of Appeals at Cincinnati rendered a decision sustaining United States Judge Evans, of Louisville, in the case of J. M. McKnight, charged with embezzling the funds of a national bank, of which he was president. He must serve the prison sentence and pay the fine imposed. It was the fourth effort of McKnight for a new trial.

Walker becomes sole proprietor of the furniture business and Mr. J. N. Boston takes the planing and saw mills.

PLEASANT EVENTS.

Thursday evening, at her home on Main street, Miss Leaffa Wilborn, the popular deputy postmaster, entertained in honor of her visitor, Miss Edna Cole, of Fredonia. A unique contest called "The Artful Gallery," was the leading feature. Various objects were arranged in the parlors and each of these suggested some famous painting. Miss Rosa Kevil was awarded the ladies prize and Mr. Ira Pierce the gentleman's prize, while the booby prize was captured by Mr. John Wilson. Flinch and other games were played and dainty refreshments were served.

The guests were Misses Cole, of Fredonia, Murphy of Henderson, Fannie and Kittie Gray, Birdie McNeely, Rosa Kevil, Anna Dorr Mintz Wilborn, Mrs. Eva Moore, and Messrs. Tucker, Wilson, Cook, Brantley, Pierce, Black, Blue, Haynes and Clifton.

Wednesday evening Miss Berna Langley, who recently returned from college, entertained a few of her friends at her home in South Marion. Miss Langley has frequently proven herself to be a delightful hostess, and as a matter of course the young people had a pleasant time Wednesday evening. Progressive Flinch was played and ices were served.

At the residence of Mr. R. A. Moore a large party of young people gathered Monday evening and had a very pleasant time.

The board of trustees of the city school did not select the teachers for the next year Saturday. Owing to the illness of two members of the board no meeting was held. The meeting will probably be held this week.

SAOON KEEPER FINED.

Mr. J. W. Eberlee, the saloon-keeper, was arraigned in police court Tuesday morning on a charge of selling whisky on Sunday. The first trial resulted in a hung jury. A second trial was held in the afternoon and Eberlee was fined $10 and costs.

MISS ISABELLE HAGNER.

The Clever and Tactful Secretary to Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt.

Miss Isabelle Hagner, social secretary to the wife of the president of the United States, is a marvel of tactfulness and efficiency. She is to Mrs. Roosevelt the invaluable friend, the promoter of social harmony, the manuall of social tactics and the smoother of the social way.

Miss Hagner is not a Roosevelt product. She belongs to Washington and is deep rooted in the soil of smart society. There is no one who better understands the social structure of Washington than this clever, incisive girl, who was born to affluence and position and who when the necessity came proved herself equal to a personal encounter with the world.

Eight years ago the most popular debutante, the toast of the season and the leader of cotillions was Belle Hagner, and even then she possessed a woman's courage despite her girlish years. She presided over her father's house, advised her motherless sisters and brothers, attended more luncheons, dinners, teas and balls than any girl in her set, and she was never mentally or physically fatigued. Her wonderful vitality proved a stimulus to her natural ambition.

Today, with an infinitely more strenuous life to be lived, Belle Hagner is as beautiful and as much a society favorite as formerly and withal she performs the duties of secretary to half a dozen women of fashion, who swear by her talents and advice.

To Mrs. Roosevelt she is well nigh indispensable, and the two women are the closest friends. At Mrs. Roosevelt's private teas and musicales it is Miss Hagner who is "the second in command." She presides over the tea table and exercises great care that conflicting elements never tread upon each other's sensitive toes. She prevents many a heartache by arranging the White House lists of guests so that different sets and cliques will dovetail with social nicely. She knows every one by name and rank and reputation, and nothing seems like work to Miss Hagner. She simply glories in the responsibility that rests upon her, and it is her pride apparently to assist Mrs. Roosevelt in making historically famous the social record of this administration.—Washington Times.

Exquisite Old Age.

You sometimes see a woman whose old age is as exquisite as was the perfect bloom of her youth. You wonder how this has come about; you wonder how it is her life has been a long and happy one. Here are some of the reasons:

She knew how to forget disagreeable things.

She kept her nerves well in hand and inflicted them on no one.

She mastered the art of saying pleasant things.

She did not expect too much from her friends.

She made whatever work came to her congenial.

She retained her illusions and did not believe all the world wicked and unkind.

She did unto others as she would be done by, and now that old age has come to her and there is a halo of white hair about her head she is loved and considered. This is the secret of a long life and a happy one.

The Fad For Simplicity.

Thanks to the fact that some of the greatest thinkers and teachers and artists of modern times have interested themselves in the problem of beauty as it concerns the commoner things of life, the number of those who are able to pluck deep in knowledge their desire to make home beautiful is constantly multiplying, and the crop of simple house furnishings is constantly increasing. It has, in fact, grown large enough of late to attract the attention even of the thoughtless. They, being always ready for something new, have of late been taking slips from this new and sturdy growth and have been planting them in their shallow ground, and behold another prodigious growth, this time of plain furniture and severe draperies, highly polished mahogany tables costing $100 each, but plain, absolutely plain, and wall papers costing $8 a roll, but severe and simple in design.—Caroline Hunt in Chautauquan.

A Visit to the Metropolis

[Original.]

In New York on Fifth avenue, not far from the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, in the buildings which forty years ago were occupied for dwellings, are a number of shops of different kinds. One morning Howard Tyson, who had recently struck gold in Colorado and was visiting New York to see the sights, emerged from the hotel, walked a few steps on Thirty-third street, crossed Fifth avenue and proceeded leisurely southward. Suddenly he stopped and faced a shop window.

The main feature for display was a wax figure of a woman in costly attire of the very latest pattern. Never were face and shoulders more true to life. The image was not only beautiful, but there was an aristocratic mien about it which could only have been modeled from a woman of noble lineage. Tyson stood spellbound.

"It beats all," he muttered to himself, "what marvelous things are to be seen in this wonderful city. Who would ever suppose that lovely creature could be made of wax, skinned with straw? I don't believe it's wax at all. The bosom rises and falls just like that of a human being."

Tyson watched the figure as long as he could without attracting attention, then walked down to the Fifth Avenue hotel and back, stopping and standing again before the wonderful figure, then, calling an automobile cab, he rode through Central park, returned to his hotel, lunched and, lighting a cigar, strolled out to take another view of the wax figure. This time it did not seem so lifelike. The flesh was waxy, and the hair grew out of a waxy scalp. He wondered how he could have seen anything in it to make him think that it might be a living being. He determined to enter the store, look over the goods and ask some questions.

"How do you make the thing breathe?" he asked.

"Ah, m'sieur, when I was young I visited Mine Tussaud's waxwork show in Paris, where I saw the reclining figure of a woman made to appear to breathe. I was not content till I had made machinery for a like purpose. That machinery is now in the figure."

"When I first looked at it, there was more appearance of life about it than there is now."

"Oul? When you first saw it, the sun was in the east, the figure in shadow. Now the sun is on it."

That evening Tyson spoke to one of the clerks in his hotel and asked him about the old Frenchman.

"The Count de Gouronne? He is a ruined French spendthrift who came over here recently and to make a living opened a shop."

Tyson spent a month in New York, every day passing the wax figure half a dozen times at least and always stopping to look at it. Whether it was the arrangement of the hair or the expression on the face or the attitude, or all of these, the thing seemed to have been modeled after some one who had lived long ago. Tyson finally noticed that between 11 and 12 o'clock in the morning and between 3 and 4 in the afternoon it looked like life, while at all other times it was waxy. One day he came to a sudden determination. Walking resolutely into the store, he faced the count.

"Mr. Count," he said, "you can't fool me any longer. The image is only in the window two hours each day and is no image at all. It's a woman, and the woman I want. I am a bachelor and rich. This woman is some relative of yours who has followed you in your misfortune. I desire to propose for her hand."

The count admitted that the woman was his relative. He promised to speak to her about Tyson's proposition, inviting him to call the next day, shortly before 3 o'clock, when the flesh and blood would be relieved from duty by the wax image.

"M'sieur," said the count when Tyson called the next day, "If you like we will proceed to make the settlement." And he produced a contract making over $100,000 in case of marriage and a forfeit of $10,000 in case Tyson should change his mind. The lover did not like the $10,000 clause, but his mind was made up that the possession of this beautiful flower of French nobility must be his, and he signed. A few minutes after the execution of the paper the count went up to the window and under pretense of rearranging it held up a curtain behind which the transfer was effected and the woman stepped into the shop.

"Ah, m'sieur," she said, bending her eye to the floor, "I have heard how you have honored me," then passed to a room at the back of the shop.

Half an hour later the door through which she had emerged was opened, and an old woman shriveled to the bone entered the shop.

"Permit me, m'sieur," said the count, "to present my sister. She has been every day made up to look like a wax figure from portrait of herself painted forty years ago."

Tyson stared at the frightful apparition for a few moments, then turned and left the shop. The next morning he drew on Denver for $10,000 and paid the forfeit. He followed his draft immediately, having seen all his wants in New York.

AMBROSE SPENCER.

THE "MORTGAGE LIFTER."

Some of the Good Points of the Hog, the Farmer's Friend.

Diversified farming is real farming and from experience is determined the most profitable farming. A man can engage in cattle raising on a ranch and is thus only a ranchman, or he can have large flocks or herds of sheep and is a herdsman, but it is the general farmer, the diversified farmer, that engages in hog raising. The hog is one of the important links or cog in the wheel of farm operations. To a certain extent the hog is an economic department. He converts the product that might otherwise be wholly or partly lost into merchantable pork. He gleams in the grainfields and is an important feature to the dairy. He is the farmer's money maker and the farmer's mortgage lifter. So true is this that it has come to be a saying in speaking of hogs as "mortgage lifters," declares the American Swineherd.

No other animal can turn out so many pounds of meat or grain from the quantity of grain fed him as can the hog. He is a machine to convert feed into a merchantable product which is unequaled by any other animal. The improved hog can be converted into cash as quickly as a crop of grain.

This, therefore, makes it easy for the grain farmers of the northwest to change from exclusive grain growing into grain and stock raising. No other animal can be as comfortably housed at so little expense as hogs. Cattle and horses require large barns that are costly and expensive in comparison with the quarters that can be arranged to protect the hogs in comfort from the weather. They are a quick asset on the farm and can be converted into money about as speedily as a government bond any day of the year.

The meat of the hog that is fed on the grains of the farm or grasses or fruit is as beautiful and wholesome as any meat that is produced.

The hog is justly, therefore, the farmer's friend, paymaster and "mortgage lifter." It is from the sale of hogs that the debts are paid, that the improvements are made on the farm, that the children are schooled, carriages bought and that the farmers have become rich from producing. The hog is an important factor, yet as a general thing he gets less care than any other animal upon the farm. While there is no other animal in which care will pay so well as the hog, the farmers should give more thought to his comfort, to his breeding, to his feeding and to his treatment.

In this day and age of progression which has reached the farm the competent and enterprising farmer will consider it a great opportunity to have the privilege of subscribing for a paper devoted exclusively to the farmer's interests in the hog.

"The Cadiz Record says: "An offense was committed in Trigg county last week that can not be too severely punished, if the facts are as reported. Isaiah Chappell, a negro boy about grown, was at work with Paul Tooke, about five miles north of Cadiz, and Clarence Gray, the little six year old brother-in-law of Mr. Tooke, went to the field where the negro was at work. The negro without cause, so we are informed, beat and bruised the little fellow unmercifully, and threatened to kill him if he told. The little fellow did not tell it, and not until Mrs. Tooke undertook to bathe him did the facts become known."

"Chappell was indicted by the recent grand jury and is now in jail. The trial will not come up until next court.

Using Gasoline.

"After I have washed my white gloves and ribbons in gasoline," says a writer in the Woman's Home Companion, "I do not throw it out, but pour it into a quart fruit jar, then screw the cover down tight. It is then ready for numerous other uses, such as dampening a cloth with it and wiping off my gasoline stove and my teakettle. It removes the grease and dust better than soap and water. When there are no fires in the house, I slightly dampen a cloth with gasoline and wipe over my carpets and the zinc under the stove. Its most practical use, however, is in the bathroom and lavatory. The spots of hard water are difficult to get off without a liberal use of water, lye, soap and labor. I have found that the white porcelain surface of bath tub and lavatory can be polished to spotless condition with almost no labor if a cloth dipped in gasoline is used.

"It would answer as well with a zinc bath tub, I know, for it polishes zinc beautifully."

The Woman Who Drifts.

The woman who drifts—that is, treads quickly of this place or that and quickly to make changes—is rarely either a happy or prosperous creature. Self guidance is not always the best, for unless it be steered by a higher power it is very apt to make the voyage of life a hazardous one. Constantly drifting in new directions, without any definite or serious aim, is giving a life without any purpose to enable it or any usefulness to make it worth living. Stay where you are until you are sure that you can better yourself by making a change and learn to make the most of the opportunities that lie within your reach if you would be successful. An old proverb says, "Changes are lightsome, and fools are fond of them." Patient, well directed efforts must lead to strength and light and reward the ambition from which they sprung.

Injuries to Children's Heads.

A child sometimes falls on its head and becomes unconscious. Generally it soon comes around and is itself again, but in any case the child must be put to bed and kept there quietly till the next day. If its feet are cold, fill a bottle with hot water, wrap it in a flannel and apply it to the extremities. Wet rags should be applied to the head and changed frequently. An excellent way of cooling the forehead is to apply a little eau de cologne or methylated spirit and then to fan the forehead briskly. This causes the spirit to evaporate and leaves the forehead as cold as if ice had been applied. An head injuries are dangerous, especially to children, whose bones are very soft, it is always best to send for a doctor in any case.

Milk Goats.

Goals of all kinds seem to be in great favor. Especial attention is being paid to milk goats, and they deserve it, for a well bred race of milk goats would be a valuable addition to our domestic animals.

A PATHETIC INCIDENT.

A Union veteran pleaded guilty in an Augusta court the other day to breaking into a store. He was old and in want, and said that dire necessity had driven him to the act.

The jury, composed of confederate veterans, asked the presiding judge to deal leniently with him. His Honor, an ex-Confederate Major, fined the prisoner one dollar, and the sheriff, an ex-Confederate Captain paid the fine. Before the Union soldier left the court room the dollar was in his pocket. The spectators rose and remained standing in sympathetic silence until he passed out. Later in the day a purse was made up by Confederate veterans and the Union soldier was sent to his home in Kentucky.

On these facts who will say that the war is not over in Georgia? One hesitates to aver that a Confederate soldier would have been treated with the same clemency and generosity in a Pennsylvania town; for if we may judge from the vehement protests to the erection of a statue of Robert E. Lee on the field of Gettysburg, that came from Union veterans in Pennsylvania, the war is not over in that State.

A BLACK BRUTE.

The Cadiz Record says: "An offense was committed in Trigg county last week that can not be too severely punished, if the facts are as reported. Isaiah Chappell, a negro boy about grown, was at work with Paul Tooke, about five miles north of Cadiz, and Clarence Gray, the little six year old brother-in-law of Mr. Tooke, went to the field where the negro was at work. The negro without cause, so we are informed, beat and bruised the little fellow unmercifully, and threatened to kill him if he told. The Goat Herd.

The Angora goat is attracting considerable attention at the present time. Owing to his peculiar habit of browsing on brush and weeds he finds particular favor among farmers. The Angora goat industry, for reasons obvious to one who gives the subject careful study, is destined to come into great prominence in New Mexico. It seems particularly desirable that the attention of the farmer and ranchman should be called to this important industry at this time, says American Sheep Breeder.

The goat, one of the hardest of animals, subject to few diseases, preferring to climb and browse among the rocks and hills, relishing buds, twigs and dry leaves, agile, keen of sight, is, from the westerner's standpoint, a rustler, the embodiment of all the qualities desirable in a range animal.

It is well known that the unoccupied range in New Mexico, where a water supply can be developed at a reasonable cost, is scarce. Overstocking is noticeable almost everywhere on the cattle and sheep ranges. There are, however, considerable areas of hilly or mountainous country producing little grass, but more or less thickly covered with brush or timber, which is eminently suited to the Angora goat.

Will Market Goat Meat.

According to information just received Kansas City, Mo., will soon have a packing house devoted exclusively to the preparation of goat meat for the market. The company interested in the matter is composed largely of Texas and Chicago parties. The concern is to be known as the Angora Lactic Food and Packing company and will be chartered under the laws of Texas with a paid capital of $150,000 which will be increased as necessary demands. James C. Page of Chicago, a well known retired board of trade man, is president of the company. Dr. McKinley is first vice president, Edward Baldwin of Chicago is second vice president and Dr. Hanson of the Lake Side hospital, Chicago, is treasurer.

Milk Goats.

Goals of all kinds seem to be in great favor. Especial attention is being paid to milk goats, and they deserve it, for a well bred race of milk goats would be a valuable addition to our domestic animals.

American Trotters For Austria.

Evidently the Austrians believe that the surest and quickest way to establish a national breed of trotters is to prove themselves able to win in contests of the highest class. Announcements recently received from Vienna state that many American bred trotters of note will stand for public service in Austria this spring.

AS BRYAN SEES THINGS.

The reception of the Cleveland boom by the Republican leaders will not be lost upon Democrats, who are loyal to principle and to party.

John Bull having benevolently assimilated 100,000 square miles of territory in Northwest Nigeria, it behoves Mr. Hay to get a handle on himself to pick up another 2x4 island in the Philippine Archipelago.

The men who know about the thefts in the postal department, and are willing to tell what they know, are receiving the cold shoulder from the gentlemen engaged in making the inquiry.

Veterans have perhaps noted that fact that none of the men who are berating General Miles and belittling his services as a soldier, ever served with or under Miles in any campaign. Those who have served under Miles know that he is a soldier.

The man who deserts to the enemy on the eve of battle and returns after assisting an administrator defeat, may know how the defeat was administered, but that does not entitle him to leadership in the army or make him the victim of his treachery.

Mr. Rockefeller says it has always been the policy of the Standard Oil Company to remain silent under attack "and let our sets speak for themselves." Probably every bank burglar in the country will agree as to the propriety of this course of action.

Russia might retort that her "constabulary" is only reducing the zeal of a lot of "fanatics," and thereby call renewed attention to the Philippine situation. The administration is fighting shy of any thing calculated to call further attention to the Philippines.

Those eminent surgeons who are so severely criticizing Dr. Lorenz's methods should interview the boys and girls who were crippled before Dr. Lorenz treated them, but who are now walking as other children walk. The world will stand by the verdict of those who have been benefitted by the Lorenz treatment.

The fact that Great Britain has

TO TAKE NEGROES NORTH.

Plans have been completed by a secret organization, with headquarters in Boston, for the greatest negro exodus in history from the South. The originator of the society, which numbers 500 members, is Rev. Henry J. Dudley, of Cambridge. The plan is to depopulate the south and southwest of negroes, who will be brought to Boston, and thence distributed throughout the west in agricultural and mining communities. The first great body of emigrants, five thousand in number, will land in Boston about the first of July. Elaborate preparations are being made for their reception. Their rapid distribution will be where their labor is most needed. The Southern headquarters are in Georgia, but the precise location is kept secret in fear of mob violence or interference from the whites. Secret agents of the society are now gathering negroes from all parts of the South.

Dr. Goldstein Returns June 15th and Will Remain a Few Days Only.

LOCATED AT NEW MARION HOTEL

Remember the eye is the most sensitive organ we have. In its normal condition we can see at all distance alike; we can admire the beauty of nature and everything that is beautiful in life. The eye is often abused and neglected, the sight becomes impaired and requires artificial aid, and as medical attention is of no consequence there have been methods to restore the sight to its normal condition, and that is the use of proper glasses. Dr. Goldstein will be in the city Monday, June 15, for a few days stay. This is the opportunity of your life to get glasses fitted to your eyes to make you see properly and to rest and strengthen them. Drs. Goldstein are well known to some of our citizens and are highly recommended. Dr. Goldstein charge you nothing for examination and consultation and will give you proper advice. The value of perfect fitting glasses with reference to health can not be over estimated. Then effect upon the nervous system is direct, and through this directly upon the entire organization.
